MTA announces major switch replacement work to improve system reliability: The Metropolitan Transportation Authority will replace track switches and perform other infrastructure improvement projects on three of the system’s subway lines. The agency is bundling projects and completing the work during August, which has traditionally low ridership, to minimize the disruption to riders.

MBTA uses lower ridership during COVID-19 pandemic to advance maintenance: The Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority is taking advantage of lower ridership during the COVID-19 pandemic to conduct a major maintenance project on the system’s Green Line. Crews are working around-the-clock to deliver major improvements including track replacement to provide safer and more comfortable service to riders.

Metra completes renovations to make rail station fully ADA compliant: Metra recently held a dedication ceremony to celebrate the new renovations to the Hazel Crest Station facility on the Metra Electric Line. The project included the rehabilitation of various parts of the facility to make the station fully compliant with the accessibility requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

MTA continues installation of contactless fare payment system: The Metropolitan Transportation Authority installed OMNY readers, a contactless fare payment solution, across all 151 Manhattan subway stations and on over 800 buses. The agency will install contactless fare payment readers in remaining stations by the end of the calendar year.
