

Reading Guide:	The table below identifies Federal programs that provide funding for human services transportation for people with disabilities, older adults, and/or individuals of low income, according to the Government Accountability Office (GAO), the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) Charter Rule, and/or Coordinating Council on Access and Mobility (CCAM) agency representatives.
	The criteria for inclusion in this inventory is that transportation service for one or more CCAM target populations is an eligible program expense, but inclusion does not necessarily imply recipients are using funds for such purpose. The filters in each column header can be used to find relevant program information.
	Program names with a plus "+" are new additions to the CCAM Program Inventory in the most recent update.
	Please note, all eligible program expenses must be aligned to the program's mission, activities, terms and conditions, etc. While an expense may be eligible, this is not a guarantee of funding. All decisions are at the discretion of the respective recipient.

Family Drug Court Program	Department of Justice (DOJ)	Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP)	Information not currently available	To serve children, parents, and families involved in the child welfare system due to parental substance use as a contributing factor to child abuse or neglect. Between 60 and 80 percent of substantiated child abuse and neglect cases handled by these courts involve substance abuse by a custodial parent or guardian. The purpose of a family treatment court is to protect child safety, ensure a permanent care-giving environment and promote children's well-being through family recovery. Each year, Family Treatment Courts (FTCs) assist approximately 30,000 children across the country. FTCs provide intensive judicial monitoring and equal access to family-focused interventions, services and supports using a multidisciplinary approach to meet the comprehensive needs of these families. These courts operate collaboratively, drawing on community partners' expertise in child welfare, substance use disorder treatment and other community services to address the needs and build on the strengths of each family member. As of 2019, an estimated 500 FTCs operate in 48 states, the District of Columbia, and the territories of Puerto Rico and Guam.	16.585	34 U.S.C. 10611 et seq.	Competitive

Tribal Youth Programs*	Department of Justice (DOJ)	Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP)	Information not currently available	To support and enhance Tribal efforts to prevent and reduce juvenile delinquency and strengthen a fair and beneficial juvenile justice system response for American Indian and Alaska Native youth. OJJDP understands that Tribal nations have varying circumstances, strengths, and needs that may challenge their ability to prevent juvenile delinquency or to intervene and treat Tribal youth when necessary. The funding in this purpose area enables Tribes to develop, expand, or strengthen approaches along the juvenile justice continuum that can range from prevention to intervention and treatment. This program helps Tribes develop and sustain effective services and programs that contribute to the reduction in the number of Tribal youths involved in juvenile justice systems, create safer communities, and empower youth to lead healthy and productive lives.	16.731	34 U.S.C. 11171 to 11172	Competitive
Youth Healing to Wellness Courts	Department of Justice (DOJ)	Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP)	Information not currently available	To develop and enhance the capacity of Tribal court to respond to the alcohol and substance use related issues of youth under the age of 21. This includes the development of a new youth healing to wellness court. The principal objectives of this program include: identifying the relevant data that is being collected with regard to Tribal underage alcohol possession and consumption, and its related issues; inventorying policies, procedures, assessment tools, and services that address youth under age 21 who possess or consume alcohol and suffer from alcohol-related issues; determining gaps in such policies, procedures, assessment tools and services; and developing or enhancing the same. Gaps to be addressed by grantees may include culturally appropriate provisions for right to counsel for persons under age 21 who have substance and/or alcohol-related issues; and judicial policies that work appropriately in Tribal justice systems to allow for delinquent charges/records to be expunged after completion of court-ordered action or programming.	16.585	34 U.S.C. 10611 et seq. Youth Mentoring Program	Department of Justice (DOJ)	Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP)	Information not currently available	To support the positive development of youth. Mentoring has been shown to improve self-esteem, academic achievement, and peer relationships and reduce drug use, aggression, depressive symptoms, and delinquent acts. Many young people have access to mentors (both naturally occurring and program supported); however, many more do not. In addition, there continues to be documented variation in both the quality of mentoring and its impact on youth outcomes. OJJDP has long supported mentoring programs, awarding more than $1.2 billion in grants to mentoring organizations from fiscal year (FY) 2008 to FY 2022. OJJDP's mentoring work aims to both increase opportunities for youth to have mentors and improve the quality and impact of the mentoring they receive. Through its research, programmatic grants, training and technical assistance, and publications, OJJDP provides national leadership to support the delivery of high quality mentoring to a growing population of youth. The OJJDP National Mentoring Resource Center (NMRC) has been developed as a key research and practice resource for the mentoring field. Together with its partners, OJJDP is working on boosting mentor recruitment, enhancing mentor-mentee matches, and increasing the number of youth who have mentors.	16.726	Public Law 118-42, 138 Stat. 25, 150	Competitive
